A FIRMAN (IMPERIAL DECREE), PAPER, WRITTEN IN TAWQI AND TALIQ

IRAN, PROBABLY ISFAHAN; 816 H = 1414

H: 600; W: 50 CM

In this firman, the Timurid prince and governor in Shiraz – Iskandar Sultan – exempts the sayyids (descendants of Muhammad) from paying taxes.

The six-meter-long decree is introduced by three lines written in gold Tawqi followed by 39 lines in gold Taliq, which was developed as a chancellery script under the late Il-Khanids. A further development of Taliq in the Iranian cultural sphere was Nastaliq, which was used especially for poetry. This firman demonstrates imperial ambitions with regard to both its size and the golden script. Iskander Sultan demonstrated them as well, and in 1414 he was deposed and blinded by his uncle and liege lord, Shah Rukh.
